

Family Learning Starter Kit

For Parents & Families • Free Resource

A simple starting point for bringing meaningful learning into everyday family life—without turning home into a classroom.

1. Our Family Learning Promise

Learning can happen through conversations, play, observation, helping, reading, creating, and exploring together. Choose connection over perfection.

2. Weekly Family Learning Planner

- One thing we want to learn together:
- One everyday activity we will try:
- One book or story we will share:
- One question we will explore:
- One thing we noticed this week:

3. Reading Together

- Choose a book that matches your child's interest.
- Ask your child what they notice before explaining.
- Let your child predict what may happen next.
- Connect the story to something in everyday life.

4. Observation Moments

- What captured my child's attention today?
- What did my child try independently?
- What questions did my child ask?
- What skill or interest appeared naturally?

5. Family Conversation Cards

- What was the most interesting thing you noticed today?
- If you could change one thing about today, what would it be?
- What would you like to learn more about?
- What could we make or discover together?

6. Screen-Free Family Idea

Choose one ordinary activity—cooking, sorting, gardening, walking, shopping, or tidying—and turn it into a shared learning moment.

7. Family Reflection

What worked well? What did your child enjoy? What should we try differently next time?

Try it. Talk about it. Make it part of real life.

This starter kit is a practical family-learning tool, not a test or academic worksheet. Adapt activities to your child's age, interests, abilities, and family routine.
